The Jett Trial for Cockrell's Murder Sept. 14th.

Judge Sanders Says Paducah Will Continue to Flourish

Grand Jury to Investigate Charges of Alleged Perjury in Harrison County.

YOUNG GIRL SHOOTS HERSELF.

HOT AFTER OFFENDERS.

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 8.—The Harrison grand jury now in session will investigate charges of perjury against several witnesses in the Jett-White case. The witnesses have been subpoenaed and county attorney Webster says the indictments will be asked against James Back, Jim O'Connor and two others.

Witnesses also been summoned to testify before the grand jury in an investigation of King, and an effort will be made to indict King on a serious charge.

Judge Osborne this morning overruled a special demuror by the defendants, and also a motion for a continuance in the Curtis Jett case and the case was set for trial for Monday, Sept. 14, on account of the necessary absence until then of Judge J. W. Black, one of the defendants attorneys.

GIRL SHOOTS HERSELF.

London, Ky., Sept. 8.—Sister, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Capt. W. R. Dillon shot herself in the breast this morning, the ball entering near the right nipple and coming out near the spinal column. Her parents insisted on her attending school this morning, which she did not want to do. She went into an adjoining room and shortly afterward the shot was heard, and the girl was found lying upon the floor. She is in a critical condition and will probably die.

TO BE INVITED HERE

State Meeting of the U. D. C. May Come

An Important Meeting of the Local Chapter Was Held This Morning.

LOCAL WOMAN FOR PRESIDENT

The Paducah Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy met this morning for the first time, since meetings were discontinued for the summer with Mrs. Will Gilbert on West Jefferson street.

Mrs. Joseph W. Thompson, president of the chapter, was made a delegate to the state U. D. C. meeting in Owensboro in October, and was given the privilege of appointing two other delegates.

It was also decided to invite the next state meeting to Paducah and Mrs. Joseph W. Thompson's name will be put before the meeting this year, as candidate for state president. The chapter will do all in its power to assist the veterans in the entertainment of visitors, to the reunion of Western Kentucky soldiers here in October. The next regular monthly meeting will be with Mrs. Mary Burnett, on West Broadway, the first Tuesday in October.

COUNCIL MEETING.

REGULAR SESSION THIS EVENING AT CITY HALL.

The regular session of the councilmanic board will be held tonight, having been postponed from last night on account of its being Labor day. The regular routine business will come up, but there will be few other things so far as is known, of unusual interest.

Captain Joe Fowler's ordinance for changing the name of Court street to Kentucky street will come up for first passage and will probably go through.

bring in about $15,000 a year which we would have to pay in taxes if we didn't have them, and notwithstanding it is so near election, there was but one little drunk here before me today, and that was from night before last. I say that there is not a better city anywhere than Paducah. We have come to stay, as it were. We will continue to flourish like a big sunflower and be as brilliant as one.

You know sunflowers are among the brightest flowers we have. We will continue to enjoy prosperity and happiness, despite the many bad things that are said by certain people about us, and will continue to do business at the old stand. This is all I have to say about Paducah until I write my memoirs—I believe that's what they call them. You know I'm writing about Paducah Past, Present and Future. We've had a grand past, have a great present, and a promising future."

The warrants after the evidence was heard this afternoon were dismissed, the evidence not developing sufficient cause, in the eyes of the court, for a fine for a breach of the peace.

Judge Sanders this morning turned over to the grand jury, which is now in session, all the felony cases on the docket. He said the grand jury, being in session was the proper authority to investigate, although Attorney Wheeler Campbell, for George Day, alleged slayer of Calvin Cary, wanted a preliminary hearing. Other cases turned over were: Mary Thomas, colored, charged with the murder of Lee Crawford; James Rook, colored, maliciously cutting George White; Charles Buck, grand larceny; Frank Bloat, maliciously assaulting Finis Campbell.

A breach of peace case against Willis Mount was continued; H. E. Whitesides was fined $3 and costs for a breach of the peace. James Taylor was fined $5 and costs for throwing stones at John Mix. George Wright, colored, was fined $1 and costs for drunkenness. The case against Prentiss

WILL GO TO MEMPHIS—Mr. H. A. Rose, the lumber dealer, is preparing to move his plant to Memphis shortly, and hopes to be ready for business there by the last of next month. He has built up a good business here and is moving because it will be a better location.

Mr. F. P. Toof, of the Cohankus Company and president of the Good Government League, was elected foreman of the grand jury this morning. Mr. J. Henry Smith, who is a candidate for office, was selected foreman yesterday, but asked to be excused on account of his canvass, and was excused.

Mr. F. P. Toof's name was the one drawn out of the wheel to succeed Mr. Smith, and he is now foreman.

It is consequently expected that there will be something doing at this session of the grand jury, which will be in session three weeks. As there are many jail cases to dispose of before the grand jury will have time for much else, however, it cannot be told to what extent other matters may be considered.

TROUBLE WAS PREVENTED—Marshal Crow this morning received a telephone message from Will Greek, the restaurant keeper, saying that his wife had come down and was breaking up all his furniture and that he did not want to have trouble with her. Officer Woods and Austin were sent down and prevented trouble. No warrants will be issued.

Mrs. Delia Franklin, wife of James Franklin, a grocer of Meyers street in Mechanicsburg, died yesterday afternoon, at her home on Meyers street, from gastritis. She was 25 years of age. She was born in Dawson but has resided in Paducah several years. The burial took place at New Hope cemetery in the county, this morning.

Mr. Charlie Ozment died yesterday in Mayfield, of typhoid fever, the direct cause of his death being an affection of the heart. He was 35 years of age and left a wife and three children.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. Wrenn Webb, at Wright's chapel Graves county this morning.

A Wife Says:

"We have four children. With the first three I suffered almost unbearable pains from 12 to 14 hours, and had to be placed under the influence of chloroform. I used three bottles of Mother's Friend before our last child came, which is a strong, fat and healthy boy, doing my housework up to within two hours of birth, and suffered but a few hard pains. This liniment is the grandest remedy ever made."

Mother's Friend

will do for every woman what it did for the Minnesota mother who writes the above letter. Not to use it during pregnancy is a mistake to be paid for in pain and suffering. Mother's Friend equips the patient with a strong body and clear intellect, which in turn are imparted to the child. It relaxes the muscles and allows them to expand. It relieves morning sickness and nervousness. It puts all the organs concerned in perfect condition for the final hour, so that the actual labor is short and practically painless. Danger of rising or hard breasts is altogether avoided, and recovery is merely a matter of a few days.

Druggists sell Mother's Friend for $1 a bottle.

$100 DOLLARS REWARD FOR RAT KILLER.

The Stearns' Electric Paste company, of Chicago, have so much faith in their Electric Rat and Roach Paste that they offer a hundred dollars reward to any one who uses their Rat and Roach Paste and does not find it successful in killing off rats, mice, cockroaches, water bugs, etc. Their Electric Paste is easy to use, and is greedily devoured by rats, mice, bugs and all vermin. An Ant, going to a river to drink, fell in, and was carried along in the stream.

A Dove, observing the accident, and pitying her condition, threw into the river a small bough, which she hastily plucked from a friendly tree growing by the brink of the stream, and by means of which the Ant gained the shore.

The Ant, upon another occasion, seeing a hunter with his fowling piece aiming at the Dove, who had rendered her such timely service, stung the man in the foot sharply, and made him miss his aim, and so saved the Dove's life.

Improvements at the Illinois Central Hospital—Dawson Wreck.

Superintendent Philbrick, of the Louisville division of the I. C. and the following officials arrived in the city last night and this morning started out over the Cairo extension of the I. C. on an inspection tour, the object being to acquaint the officials with the territory. General Freight Agent J. L. Durret, T. W. Howell, a freight service man of Louisville; T. H. Harwood, freight service at Evansville; C. C. Cameron, general freight agent on lines south of the Ohio river.

Much improvement is going on at the I. C. hospital. The colored ward has been remodeled to an extent and a new hardwood floor put in. Hardwood floors are being put in several private nurse's rooms also and the porch upstairs is being encased with glass for use in the winter. The glass can be removed and will be taken out every summer.

The investigation of the Dawson freight wreck Saturday will be held this afternoon in Master Mechanic T. F. Barton's office at the I. C. shops. The witnesses are all instructed to report there at that time. It is understood that several changes will be made as a result of the wreck, but this is merely rumor.

Romanster J. M. Russell, of the Louisville division of the I. C., was in the city last night on business.

AFRAID OF SPIES

MISS ELLEN STONE ABANDONS LECTURE TOUR.

Chelsea, Mass., Sept. 8.—Ellen Stone is here, having temporarily discontinued the lecture platform, because, as her friends and associates say, she does not wish to have any of her words bear even indirectly upon the trouble in Turkish territory, and besides Turkish spies, of whom plenty are at work locally, are hanging around the Stone residence, as they are around the home of Miss Daniels, another missionary. Miss Stone practically refuses to be seen, nor will she send word to the door, and at the American board headquarters, the big Congregational house building, Greek, Turkish and Armenian peddlers have been barred, as the officials don't wish to take chances with spies.

WILL MARABLE, A HACK DRIVER, TOUGH HANDLED

Alleged to Have Slapped Their Mother—All Were Arrested for felonies on Assault.

CASES SET FOR TOMORROW

Will Marable, a colored hack driver, was waylaid this morning about 5 o'clock near the corner of Seventh and Ohio streets and badly beaten up and cut by Will Well, Clarence and Romeo Dawson, sons of Al Dawson, colored, who also drives a hack.

The trouble started Saturday when Mrs. Dawson, the mother of the boys, began "ragging" Marable, as he termed it, about being ill, and he asked her to stop saying anything about him on the street. She ran towards him and struck him, Marable claims, and he slapped her and kept her at a distance to prevent trouble. She cried for her husband who came out of the house and attacked Marable who beat him off also. The master was dropped until this morning when the three sons waylaid him and nearly succeeded in beating him to death with sticks and bricks.

Marable lives at 627 South Eighth street and was going east on Ohio street en route to Etter's hack stable when the trouble started.

LIVELY RUNAWAY.

BUT FORTUNATELY NO ONE WAS INJURED IN IT.

There was a lively runaway on South Ninth street near Clark last night but fortunately no one was injured. Captain Harley, of the Jackson baseball team, had a young lady driving when at Ninth and Clark the horse became frightened at a car and began to run away. The young lady jumped out and escaped injury while Captain Harley remained in the buggy and stopped the animal. The buggy was damaged considerably.

GROUP.

Usually begins with the symptoms of a common cold; there is chilliness, sneezing, sore throat, hot skin, quick pulse, hoarseness and impeded respiration. Give frequent small doses of Ballard's Horehound Syrup, the child will cry for it, and at the first sign of a croupy cough, apply frequently Ballard's Snow Liniment externally to the throat. 50c at DuBois, Kolb and Co.

Some of our Democratic friends are taking a great deal more interest in the election now than they will be this time next week.

Mr. Bryan can exult with himself some more now. The Colorado Democratic convention reaffirmed the Kansas City platform. He probably feels that he is not quite dead, after all.

The Christian massacres are becoming so common in Turkey that it is probable the powers will yet have to take a hand in restoring peace and

The labor day celebrations all over the country indicate that the working people greatly enjoy the holiday. Hundreds of thousands of men were in line and each year the observance becomes more general and gigantic.

King Peter, of Servia, is still having his troubles. The latest treat with which he was honored was a shower of stones, one striking him in the face. If nothing worse than stones is used on King Peter, however, he will be more fortunate than his predecessor.

When the Go-betwines in Kentucky sent out of the state for the assistance of criminal lawyers of shady reputation, their purpose to run a purvey mill to hound the Republicans driven from the state offices was clear to all observers of ordinary intelligence, says the Globe-Democrat.

Will the Democrats of Kentucky who were a few months ago brawling about how the Frankfort office holders trust skinned Col. Hendrick and forced him to withdraw as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, forget sufficiently to go to the polls in November and endorse the robbery of which they complained? It remains to be seen.

The girls should take warning. They have during the past few years been confiscating various articles of masculine apparel, invading the various professions in which man had an undisputed monopoly for untold generations, and otherwise threatening to displace men as the lords of creation, but now a young man has taken the prize for the best trimmed bonnet at the big Chicago milliners contest, over scores of fair female milliners. This should be sufficient to bring home to the sex the danger of their modern tendencies. It would be sad indeed if the men should be forced to these sort of things for a livelihood and leave the ambitious maidens to do all the men's work.

Colonel Morris Belknap's reply to Governor Beckham's challenge regarding pardons was dignified and to the point. He says that he does not care to enter into any promises with Governor Beckham, for the latter before he was elected for the present term promised faithfully that he would pardon no person convicted of murder or manslaughter by a fair jury, and then broke his promise. He said that so far as the pardoning power is concerned, that should he, Colonel Belknap, be elected governor, he will never pardon anyone for political reasons, or pardon anyone whom he does not honestly and conscientiously believe to be entitled to executive clemency.

MORE CHANGES

New Districts May be Made on the Illinois Central

Mr. T. L. Dubbs succeeds Trainmaster Spencer on the Fulton District.

It is reported that the Illinois Central is engaged in a plan to redistrict some of its system. For instance there are three divisions between Fulton, Ky., and New Orleans, via Water Valley, Canton and McComb City, the last division being 150 miles, the distance from McComb City to New Orleans. According to the reported redistricting of territory, the running division on the south end is to be changed from McComb City to New Orleans to Jackson, Miss., and New Orleans a distance of about 183 miles. The average running distance of engineers and conductors is from 105 to 165 miles, but under the new arrangement the engineers and conductors will run an average of 185 miles.

Mr. T. L. Dubbs, who has been assistant trainmaster of the Fulton district, has been promoted to the position of trainmaster to succeed G. W. Spencer, resigned. Mr. Dubbs was formerly a conductor and conductor Watt Graham, of Jackson, Tenn., has been made assistant chief dispatcher to succeed Mr. Stocker at Fulton. There is scarcely a day that changes are not made on the districts below.

A negro employee of the Greek restaurant on Court street between First and Second, dropped dead at 12 o'clock today. No name is known for him except "Eugene." He has been a consumer for some time and was attacked with a hemorrhage of the lungs and died in a few minutes.

Coroner William Peal signed a death certificate this afternoon, the formalities of an inquest being unnecessary, assigning hemorrhage of the lungs as the cause of death. The negro is about 35 years of age, but little is known of his history. He is supposed to have relatives in the city, but Coroner Peal had failed to locate them this afternoon. The body is at Metzil and Ellinger's undertaking establishment, but no arrangements have been made for the burial.

FREE FACE BLEACH FOR COMPLEXION

I WILL SEND FREE TRIAL BOTTLE OF MY FACE BLEACH TO ANY LADY SENDING NAME AND ADDRESS.

MME. A. RUPPERT, 6 E 14TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

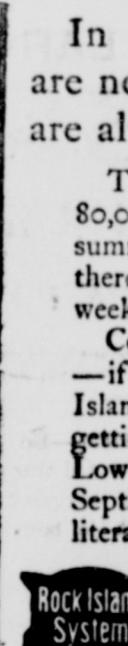

How to Obtain a Lovely COMPLEXION Clear and Beautiful

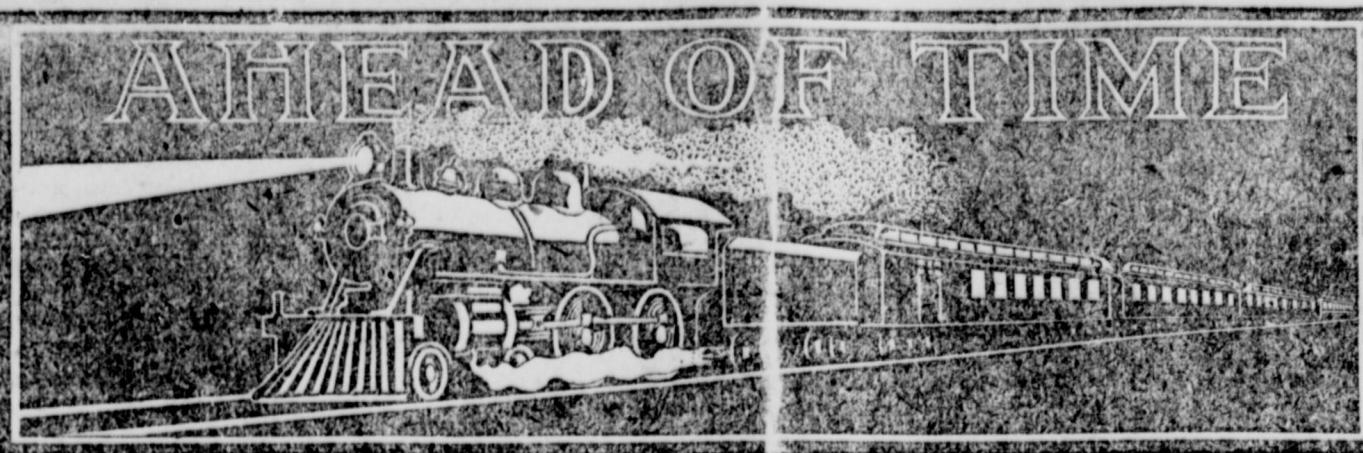

It is every woman's duty to be as youthful and good looking as possible, and there is nothing which adds more beauty than a lovely complexion, and there is no remedy which will restore the complexion and give one that youthful appearance like Mme. A. Ruppert's World Renowned Face Bleach. This grand remedy clears the skin of every discoloration, and impurity, including pimples, freckles, moth patches, brown spots, liver marks, comedones, flesh-worms, blackheads, oiliness, sallowness, mudline and skin diseases. It accomplishes these wonderful effects by drawing the impurities and discolorations to the surface of the skin and then removing these blemishes by gradually sealing off a slight surface of the outer scab skin. It does this in so natural a manner as to be entirely harmless to the most delicate complexion, and, having this action, it cannot fail to produce excellent effects.

Most marvelous results are obtained when Face Bleach is used according to my new Special Directions in conjunction with my Egyptian Balm, a bar of my most exquisite Almond Oil Complexion Soap, my New Special Directions, my book, "How to BE BEAUTIFUL"—all for $2. The price of Face Bleach alone is $2 per bottle, hence you receive articles absolutely free.

ALICE of OLD VINCENNES

By MAURICE THOMPSON

Copyright, 1900, by the BOWEN-MERRILL COMPANY

"Maybe you think I haven't any letter for M'sieu' Roussillon," he blurted, "and maybe you are quite certain that I am not going to the house to take the letter."

"M. Roussillon is absent, you know," Father Beret suggested. "But cherry pies are just as good while he's gone as when he's at home, and I happen to know that there are some particularly delicious ones in the pantry of Mme. Roussillon, Mlle. Alice gave me a juicy sample, but then I dare say you do not care to have your pie served by her hand. It would interfere with your appetite. Eh, my son?"

Rene turned short about, waggling his head and laughing, and so with his back to the priest he strode away along the wet path leading to the Roussillon place.

Father Beret gazed after him, his face relaxing to a serious expression in which a trace of sadness and gloom spread like an elusive twilight. He took out his letter, but did not glance at it, simply holding it tightly gripped in his sinewy right hand. Then his old eyes stared vacantly, as eyes do when their sight is cast back many, many years into the past. The missile was from beyond the sea—he knew the handwriting—a waft of the flowers of Avignon seemed to rise out of it, as if by the pressure of his grasp.

A stoop shouldered, burly man went by, leading a pair of goats, a kid following. He was making haste excitedly, keeping the goats at a lively trot.

"Bon jour, Pere Beret!" he flung out breezily, and walked rapidly on.

"Ah, ah; his mind is busy with the newly arrived cargo," thought the old priest, returning the salutation. "His throat aches for liquor—the poor man."

Then he read again the letter's superscription and made a faltering move as if to break the seal. His hands trembled violently, his face looked gray and drawn.

"Come on, you brutes," cried the receding man, jerking the thongs of skin by which he led the goats.

Father Beret rose and turned into his damp little hut, where the light was dim on the crucifix hanging opposite the door against the clay-washed wall. It was a bare, unsightly, clammy room. A rude bed on one side, a shelf for table and two or three wooden stools constituting the furniture, while the uneven puncheons of the floor wobbled and clattered under the priest's feet.

He had been many years since a letter from home had come to Father Beret. The last before the one now in hand had made him ill of nostalgia, fairly shaking his iron determination never to quit for a moment his life-work as a missionary. Ever since that day he had found it harder to meet the many and stern demands of a most difficult and exacting duty. Now the mere touch of the paper in his hand gave him a sense of returning weakness, dissatisfaction and longing. The home of his boyhood, the rashing of the Rhine, a seat in a shady nook of the garden, Madeline, his sister, prattling beside him and his mother singing somewhere about the house—she all came back and went over him and through him, making his heart sink strangely, while another voice, the sweetest ever heard—but she was ineffable and her memory a forbidden fragrance.

Father Beret tittered across the torn little room and knelt before the crucifix, holding his clasped hands high, the letter pressed between them. His lips moved in prayer, but mad no sound; his whole frame shook violently.

It would be unpardonable desecration to enter the chamber of Father Beret's soul and look upon his sacred and secret trouble, nor must we even speculate as to its particulars. The good old man writhed and wrestled before the cross for a long time, until at last he seemed to receive the calmness and strength he prayed for so fervently. Then he rose, tore the letter into pieces so small that not a word remained whole and squeezed them so firmly together that they were compressed into a tiny, solid ball which he let fall through a crack between the floor puncheons. After waiting twenty years for that letter, hungry as his heart was, he did not even open it when at last it arrived. He would never know what message it bore. The link between him and the old sweet days was broken forever. Now, with God's help, he could do his work to the end.

He went and stood in the doorway, leaning against the side. He looked toward the "river house," as the inhabitants had named a large shanty which stood on the bluff of the Wabash not far from where the road bridge at present crosses, and saw men gathering there.

Meantime Rene de Ronville had delivered Mme. Roussillon's letter with due promptness. Of course such a service demanded pie and claret. What still better pleased him, Alice chose to be more amiable than was usually her custom when he called. They sat together in the main room of the house, where M. Roussillon kept his books, his curiosities of Indian manufacture collected here and there, and his surplus firearms, swords, pistols and knives.

ranged not unpleasingly around the walls.

Of course, along with the letter, Rene bore the news, so interesting to himself, of the boat's tempting cargo just discharged at the river house. Alice understood her friend's danger—feet it in the intense enthusiasm of his voice and manner. She had once seen the men carousing on a similar occasion when she was but a child, and the impression then made still remained in her memory. Instinctively she resolved to hold Rene by one means or another away from the river house if possible. So she managed to keep him occupied eating pie, sipping watered claret and chatting until night came on and Mme. Roussillon brought in a lamp. Then he hurriedly snatched his cap from the floor beside him and got up to go.

"Come and look at my handwriting," Alice quickly said; "my shelf of pies, I mean." She led him to the pantry, where a dozen or more of the cherry pies were ranged in order. "I made every one of them this morning and baked them; had them all out of the oven before the rain came up. Don't you think me a wonder of cleverness and industry? Father Beret was polite enough to flatter me; but you—you just eat what you want and say nothing! You are not polite, M. Rene de Ronville."

"I've been showing you what I thought of your goodies," said Rene.

"Eating's better than talking, you know, so I'll just take one more," and he helped himself. "Isn't that compliment enough?"

"A few such would make me another hot day's work," she replied, laughing. "Pretty talk would be cheaper and more satisfactory in the long run. Even the flour in these pates I ground with my own hand in an Indian mortar. That was hard work too."

By this time Rene had forgotten the river house and the liquor. With softening eyes he gazed at Alice's rounded cheeks and sheeny hair, over which the light from the curious earthen lamp she bore in her hand flickered most effectively. He loved her madly, but his fear of her was more powerful than his love. She gave him no opportunity to speak what he felt, having ever ready a quick, bright change of mood and manner when she saw him plucking up courage to address her in a sentimental way. Their relations had long been somewhat familiar, which was but natural, considering their youth and the circumstances of their daily life, but Alice somehow had kept a certain distance open between them, so that very warm friendship could not suddenly resolve itself into a troublesome passion on Rene's part.

We need not attempt to analyze a young girl's feelings and motives in such a case. What she does and what she thinks are mysteries even to her own understanding. The influence most potent in shaping the raffish character of Alice Tarleton (called Roussillon) had been only such as a lonely frontier post could generate. Her associations with men and women had, with few exceptions, been unpredictable in an educational way, while her reading in M. Roussillon's little library could not have given her any practical knowledge of manners and life.

Her affection for Rene was interfered with by her large admiration for the heroic, masterful and magnetic knights who charged through the romances of the Roussillon collection. For although Rene was unquestionably brave and more than passably handsome, he had no armor, no war horse, no shining lance and embossed shield—the difference, indeed, was great.

Perhaps it was the light and heat of imagination shining out through Alice's face which gave her beauty such a fascinating power. Rene saw it and felt its electrical stroke send a sweet shiver through his heart while he stood before her.

"You are very beautiful tonight, Alice," he presently said, with a suddenness which took even her alertness by surprise. A flush rose to his dark face and immediately gave way to a grayish pallor. His heart came near stopping on the instant, he was so shocked by his own daring, but he laid a hand on her hair, stroking it softly.

Just a moment she was at a loss, looking a trifle embarrassed; then, with merry laugh, she stepped aside and said:

"That sounds better, M. Rene de Ronville; much better. You will be as polite as Father Beret after a little more training."

She slipped past him while speaking and made her way back again to the main room, whence she called to him:

"Come here. I've something to show you."

He obeyed, a sheepish trace on his countenance betraying his self-consciousness.

When he came near Alice, she was taking from its buckhorn hook on the wall a rapier, one of a beautiful pair hanging side by side.

"Papa Roussillon gave me these," she said, with great animation. "He bought them of an Indian who had kept them a long time. Where he came across them he would not tell. But look, how beautiful! Did you ever see anything so fine?"

Guard and hilt were of silver; the blade, although somewhat corroded, still showed the fine, wavy lines of Damascus steel and traces of delicate engraving, while in the end of the hilt was set a large oval turquoise.

"A very queer present to give a girl," said Rene. "What can you do with them?"

A captivating flash of playfulness came into her face and she sprang backward, giving the sword a semi-circular turn with her wrist. The blade sent forth a keen hiss as it cut the air close, very close to Rene's nose. He jerked his head and flung up his hand.

She laughed merrily, standing beautifully poised before him, the rapier's point slightly elevated. Her short skirt left her feet and ankles free to show their graceful proportions and the perfect pose in which they held her supple body.

"You see what I can do with the coquettish, eh, M. Rene de Ronville!" she exclaimed, giving him a smile which fairly blinded him. "Now, how very near to your neck I can thrust and yet not touch it. Now!"

She darted the keen point under his chin and drew it away so quickly that the stroke was like a glint of sunlight.

"What do you think of that as a nice and accurate piece of skill?"

She again resumed her pose, the right foot advanced, the left arm well back, her lissome, finely developed body leaning slightly forward.

Rene's hands were up before his face in a defensive position, palms outward.

Just then a chorus of men's voices sounded in the distance. The river house was beginning its carousal with a song. Alice let fall her sword's point and listened.

The rapier was making a crisscross pattern of flashing lines.

Rene looked about for his cap.

"I must be going," he said.

Another and louder swish of the rapier made him pirouette and dodge again with great energy.

"Don't," he cried, "that's dangerous. You'll put out my eyes. I never saw such a girl!"

She laughed at him and kept on whipping the air dangerously near his eyes until she had driven him backward as far as he could squeeze himself into a corner of the room.

Mme. Roussillon came to the door from the kitchen and stood looking in and laughing, with her hands on her hips. By this time the rapier was making a crisscross pattern of flashing lines close to the young man's head while Alice, in the enjoyment of her exercise, seemed to concentrate all the glowing rays of her beauty in her face, her eyes dancing merrily.

"Quit now, Alice," he begged, half in fun and half in abject fear. "Please quit—I surrender!"

She thrust to the wall on either side of him, then springing lightly backward a pace, stood at guard. Her thick yellow hair had fallen over her neck and shoulders in a loose wavy mass, out of which her face beamed with a bewitching effect upon her captive.

Rene, glad enough to have a cessation of his peril, stood laughing dryly, but the singing down at the river house was swelling louder and he made another movement to go.

"You surrendered, you remember," cried Alice, renewing the sword play. "Sit down on the chair there and make yourself comfortable. You are not going down yonder tonight; you are going to stay here and talk with me and Mother Roussillon. We are lonesome and you are good company."

A shot rang out keen and clear, there was a sudden tumult that broke up the singing, and presently more firing at varying intervals cut the night air from the direction of the river.

Jean, the hunchback, came in to say that there was a row of some sort. He had seen men running across the common as if in pursuit of a fugitive, but the moonlight was so dim that he could not be sure what it all meant.

Rene picked up his cap and bolted out of the house.

CHAPTER III.

THE RAPE OF THE DEMIJOHN.

THE row down at the river house was more noise than fight, so far as results seemed to indicate. It was all about a small dame Jeanne of fine brandy which an Indian of the name of Long Hair had seized and run off with at the height of the carousel. He must have been soberer than his pursuers or naturally fleet, for not one of them could catch him or even keep long in sight of him. Some pistols were emptied while the race was on, and two or three of the men swore roundly to having seen Long Hair jump sideways and stagger, as if one of the shots had taken effect. But, although the moon was shining, he somehow disappeared, they could not understand just how, far down beside the river below the fort and the church.

It was not an uncommon thing for an Indian to steal what he wanted, and in most cases light punishment followed conviction, but it was felt to be a capital offense for an Indian or anybody else to rape a demijohn of fine brandy, especially one sent as a present by a friend in New Orleans to Lieutenant Governor Abbott, who had until recently been the commandant of the post. Every man at the river house recognized and resented the enormity of Long Hair's crime, and each was for the moment ready to be his judge and his executioner. He had broken at once every rule of frontier etiquette and every bond of sympathy. Nor was Long Hair ignorant of the danger involved in his daring enterprise. He had beforehand carefully and stolidly weighed the conditions, and true to his Indian nature had concluded that a little wicker covered bottle of brandy was well worth the risk of his life. So he had put himself in condition for a great race by slipping out and getting rid of his weapons and all surplus weight of clothes.

This incident brought the drinking bout at the river house to a sudden end, but nothing further came of it that night and no record of it would be found in these pages but for the fact that Long Hair afterward became an important character in the stirring historical drama which had old Vincennes for its center of energy.

Rene de Ronville probably felt himself in bad luck when he arrived at the river house just too late to share in the liquor or to join in chasing the bold thief. He listened with interest, however, to the story of Long Hair's capture of the commandant's demijohn and could not refrain from saying that if he had been present there would have been a quite different result.

"I would have shot him before he got to that door," he said, drawing his heavy flintlock pistol and going through the motions of one aiming quickly and firing. Indeed, so vigorously in earnest was he with the pantomime that he actually did fire, unintentionally of course, the ball burying itself in the doorknob.

He was laughed at by those present for being more excited than they who witnessed the whole thing. One of them, a leathery faced and grizzled old sinner, leered at him contemptuously and said in queer French, with a curious accent caught from long use of backwoods English:

"Listen how the boy brags! Ye might think to hear Rene talk that he actually amounted to a big pile."

This personage was known to every soul in Vincennes as Uncle Jazon, and when Uncle Jazon spoke the whole town felt bound to listen.

"An' how well he shoots, too," he added, with an intolerable wink.

"Aimed at the door and hit the post.

Certainly Long Hair would have been in great danger! "Oh, yes, he'd 'ave killed Long Hair at the first shot, wouldn't he though?"

"All right, Uncle Jazon," said Rene, laughing and blowing the smoke out of his pistol. "Twas you, all the same, who let Long Hair trot off with the governor's brandy; not I. If you could have hit even a doorman it might have been better."

Uncle Jazon took off his cap and looked down into it in a way he had when about to say something final.

"Ventrebleu! I did not shoot at Long Hair at all," he said, speaking slowly.

"because the scoundrel was unarmed.

We didn't have on even a knife, and he was havin' enough to do dodgin' the bullets that the rest of 'em were plumbin' at 'im without any compliments from me to bother 'im more."

"Well," Rene replied, turning away with a laugh, "if I'd been scalped by the Indians as you have I don't think there would be any particular reason why I should wait for an Indian thief to go and arm himself before I attacked him as a target."

Uncle Jazon lifted a hand involuntarily and rubbed his scalps crown; then he chuckled with a grotesque grimace as if the recollection of having his head skinned were the funniest thing imaginable.

Rene, glad enough to have a cessation of his peril, stood laughing dryly, but the singing down at the river house was swelling louder and he made another movement to go.

"When you've killed as many of 'em as Uncle Jazon has," remarked a bystander to Rene, "you'll not be so hungry for blood, maybe."

"Especially after ye've took fifty-nine scalps to pay for yer one," added Uncle Jazon, replacing his cap over the hairless area of his crown.

The men who had been chasing Long Hair presently came straggling back with their stories—each had a distinct one—of how the fugitive escaped. They were wild looking fellows, most of them somewhat intoxicated, all profusely liberal with their stock of picturesque profanity. They represented the roughest element of the well nigh lawless post.

"I'm positive that he's wounded," said one. "Jacques and I shot at him together, so that our pistols sounded just as if only one had been fired bang! that way—and he leaped sideways for all the world like a bird with a broken leg. I thought he'd fall; but ye! he ran faster'n ever, and

In the highlands of Indiana—a two hour ride from Louisville there flow wonderful healing waters, that you'd spend hundreds of dollars to enjoy if they were in Europe.

A recent visitor from Philadelphia, who formerly went to Carlsbad every year, said: "I do not see why anyone goes to Europe for medicinal waters. The water is as beneficial, and the scenery and surrounding country, the air and the opportunities for recreation are better; the hotels and all accommodations are much finer at French Lick-West Baden Springs"—and this gentleman is a native of Switzerland.

The splendidly wooded hills with the cool, invigorating air of these highlands where one can enjoy rambles in the depths of the forest, or rides and drives among the numerous bridle paths and roadways, afford pleasure for those who desire rest and quiet; while at the splendid and famous ones can have all the entertainment and pleasures possible at the most fashionable resorts.

COUNT THURSDAY

Much Interest Manifested in Goddess of Labor Contest.

Labor Day Passed Off Most Enjoyably to All Yesterday.

The count of ballots to declare the Goddess of Labor will be made Thursday night. There is much interest manifested in the outcome and the race is said to be a hot one.

The parade yesterday was very creditable and the celebrations were carried through without any accident of any kind. The crowd at the park was orderly and the officers had no trouble at all yesterday as there was comparatively little drunkenness and every body seemed in a good humor.

The street car company did an enormous business keeping its entire force of motormen on the cars until late last night. They handled, but few less than on circus day, when 13,000 fares were collected.

It is generally acknowledged that the parade and the festivities were the most creditable ever witnessed in Paducah, and everybody enjoyed the day.

SHOULDER BROKEN

PAINFUL ACCIDENT TO YOUNG MAN AT WALLACE PARK.

Mr. William Geer, of Mechanicsburg, a young man well known in musical circles in the South Side, met with a painful and serious accident yesterday afternoon at Wallace park where he had gone to celebrate labor day.

Geer and several companions were playing about the park at wrestling when some one grabbed hold of him and threw him to the ground. The left shoulder blade was broken and Geer had to be taken home and placed in bed. Dr. J. S. Troutman dressed the injuries. Geer passed a restless night but is better today.

TO LOCATE HERE

YOUNG PHOTOGRAPHERS LIKE PADUCAH VERY MUCH.

The Sandoz Brothers, the photographers, who have made quite a reputation in Paducah with small photographs, have decided to remain here, and do more elaborate work. They are opening a gallery, which will be known as "The Elite," at the corner of Third and Court, and will be prepared for customers in a short while. Both gentlemen are clever artists and will do some good work.

CARD OF MILTON G. BROOKS.

A report having been circulated referring to the matter of Lockup Keeper during the administration of what was known as "The Business Man's Council," in order to set myself right and to repudiate the many false statements made, I now desire to give the facts in the case. At the time the Republican council was in office and it became known to me that the office of lockup keeper was to be filled I approached Captain Farley and Mr. Williamson asking that they support me for said office, they declined saying it was not yet time for a negro to fill office, that it would hurt the party and the administration. I then went before the council while in session and handed to Mayor Yeiser a document which was handed by him to Mr. Arthur Cole, the clerk. Mr. Cole read said communication, endorsing me for the office and said document was signed by many members of the McKinley and Lincoln club, and after same was read by Mr. Cole, it was ordered received, filed and made a part of the record.

The above are the facts and are given by me, solely to repudiate the many false statements circulated.

MILTON G. BROOKS.

Paducah, Ky., September 8, 1903.

This is to certify that Milton G. Brooks this day made oath that the above statements are true.

H. H. LOVING, Notary Public.
